Attendance Matters

Not only is attendance required by law, but it can be a huge indicator of student success. Here are a few ways to assist your child in keeping a healthy attendance record.

- Insist on adequate sleep. A reasonable bedtime ensures a minimum of 8 hours of sleep for students ages 12-18.
- Be consistent, try not to deviate from the weeknight routine when possible.
- Talk to your child about the importance of attendance, not just at school, but in all aspects of life including future earning potential.
- Limit screen time, especially in the evenings. Keep it limited to weekends and holidays when possible. Students should not have access to cell phones, tablets and computers all hours of the day or night. There are apps to help monitor and set screen times.
- Make sure they are eating healthy and getting plenty of outdoor exercise.
- Have quiet time at least 30 minutes prior to bedtime. This can be spent reading, meditating or just relaxing.

Making simple changes to your child's routine will create better days for them and you!
